READING PASSAGE 1

date
2017.11.25.11

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1-14, which are based on Reading Passage 1 below.

Timekeeper: Invention of Marine Chronometer

- A Up to the middle of the 18th century, the navigators were still unable to exactly identify the position at sea, so they might face a great number of risks such as the shipwreck or running out of supplies before arriving at the destination. Knowing one's position on the earth requires two simple but essential coordinates, one of which is the longitude.
- B The longitude is a term that can be used to measure the distance that one has covered from one's home to another place around the world without the limitations of naturally occurring baseline like the equator. To determine longitude, navigators had no choice but to measure the angle with the naval sextant between Moon centre and a specific star—lunar distance—along with the height of both heavenly bodies. Together with the nautical almanac, Greenwich Mean Time (GMT) was determined, which could be adopted to calculate longitude because one hour in GMT means 15-degree longitude. Unfortunately, this approach laid great reliance on the weather conditions, which brought great inconvenience to the crew members. Therefore, another method was proposed, that is, the time difference between the home time and the local time served for the measurement. Theoretically, knowing the longitude position was quite simple, even for the people in the middle of the sea with no land in sight. The key element for calculating the distance travelled was to know, at the very moment, the accurate home time. But the greatest problem is: how can a sailor know the home time at sea?
- C The simple and again obvious answer is that one takes an accurate clock with him, which he sets to the home time before leaving. A comparison with the local time (easily identified by checking the position of the Sun) would indicate the time difference between the home time and the local time, and thus the distance from home was obtained. The truth was that nobody in the 18th century had ever managed to create a Write your answers in boxes 4-8 on your answer sheet.

- 4 What has been found in some Fancy Foods products?
- 5 Where can you find the batch number on the jars?
- 6 How much will you receive for an opened jar of contaminated Chicken Curry?
- 7 If you have eaten Chicken Curry from a jar with one of the batch numbers listed, whom should you contact?
- 8 What is the maximum reward Fancy Foods is offering for information about who contaminated their product?

IMPORTANT NOTICE: PRODUCT RETURN

Fancy Foods wishes to inform the public that pieces of metal have been found in some jars of Fancy Foods Chicken Curry (Spicy). The batches of the jars involved have numbers from J6617 to J6624. The batch number is printed on the bottom of each jar.

If you have any jars with these batch numbers, please return them (preferably unopened) to the supermarket where you purchased them. You can also return them to the factory (Fancy Foods Retailers, Blacktown). Fancy Foods will pay $10 for each jar returned unopened and $5 for each jar already opened.

No payment will be made for empty jars, which do not need to be returned. However, the Retailing Manager will be interested to hear from people who have consumed chicken curry from any of the above batch numbers. In particular, it will be helpful if they can give information about the place of purchase of the product.

Jars of Fancy Foods Chicken Curry (Coconut) and Fancy Foods Chicken Curry (Mango) have not been affected and do not need to be returned.

REWARD

Fancy Foods will pay a reward of $10,000 to $50,000 for information which leads to the conviction of any person found guilty of placing metal pieces in its products. If you have such information, please contact the Customer Relations Manager, Fancy Foods Retailers, Blacktown.

The relationship between the ranks was more democratic and official had to gain respect for his troops. All us, they paid a high price to fight in the war. Of the 324,000 soldiers who served abroad at war 215,000 were killed or wounded. This reflected the fact that at the cost of 60,000 dead, Australia finally appeared from the shadow (7) of the Grand -bretan. This was the greatest proportion of any of the warps and probably was due to Australian fighting qualities, which meant that they were often used Ä Ä Ä Ä Ä in the front line of the fight. At home, the war had a significant effect on the economy. The Great War was perhaps the beginning of the modern Australian historia. Monash was probably the largest military figure in Australia. As in other exemptions in the war, the Australian soldiers were all volunteers. They were also more individualistic and showed less respect for the rule book than other soldiers. In many ways, it served to create what is, in a way, a second foundation of the nation in the Gallipoli campaign and the battlefields of France and BÄ © Lgica. For example, in 24 hours near Pozieres, the 5th division suffered 5,000 casualties. In the Bullecort battle, of the 3,000 men who advanced, 2339 were killed, wounded or captured. In 1917 most officers were not professional soldiers.
